MOUNTSORREL is a small market town, on the west side of the river Soar, and on the high road from Loughborough to Leicester, 4 miles S.S.E. of the former, 7 miles N. of the latter, and 1½ miles S. of Barrow station, in the Union of Barrow-on-Soar. Mountsorrel Chapelry contains 1597 inhabitants, and about 700 acres of land, and is divided into two townships, viz., Mountsorrel North End, which is in the parish of Barrow-on-Soar, and Mountsorrel South End, in the parish and peculiar of Rothley. The Earl of Lanesborough is lord of the manor. On Castle hill, which rises boldly and precipitously to the height of 100 feet, nearly overhanging the houses, formerly stood a strong fortress, but it was demolished by order of King Henry III. These hills are composed chiefly of a remarkably hard and enduring red and grey syenite, or granite, much of which is used in the locality for millstones, paving, road making, and building. Since the establishment of the MOUNTSORREL GRANITE WORKS the quarries have been more extensively worked; vast quantities are sent to the metropolis and other parts of the kingdom. About the middle of the town there once stood an old cross, but at the close of the last century it was removed by Sir John Danvers to his grounds at Swithland, and on its site he erected a small round building for a market house; it has a cupola, and an entablature of freestone, supported by eight cylindrical columns. The market day is Monday, and there is a fair on the 10th July, continuing for nine days. The river Soar is made navigable for 16 miles, commencing at the town of Leicester, and, after passing Mountsorrel, ends at Loughborough, but communicates with other canals, by which means goods are conveyed to all the principal towns of the North of England. The old Church, or chapel, at Mountsorrel North End, dedicated to St. Peter, has a square tower, with a plain parapet and three bells. The living is a perpetual curacy, valued at £160, mostly derived from a bequest made by Dr. Beveridge, Bishop of St. Asaph, in the year 1706; the patronage is in the vicar of Barrow-on-Soar, and the incumbent is the Rev. John Newham, who resides at Quorndon. The other Church, at Mountsorrel South End, called Christ church, was erected in 1844, at the sole expense of Miss Brinton, a lady resident in Berkshire; it is a small building, in the English-Gothic style, has a nave, small chancel, a tower containing one bell, and crowned with a spire; both the church and the parsonage house are built chiefly of Mountsorrel granite, taken from the hill on which they stand. About 7 acres of land are attached to the parsonage. The cost of the whole was about £6000. The Rev. Edward Gillson is the incumbent, and his district comprises about 800 people. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and General Baptists have chapels here; that occupied by the latter formerly belonged to Presbyterians, and Dr. Watts, the celebrated Nonconformist divine, occasionally officiated therein. Here is a FREE SCHOOL for 12 poor boys, founded and endowed in 1742 by Sir Joseph Danvers; also a National School for boys and girls; and the Infant School was built (1847) by the Countess of Lanesborough. There are many Charities in Mountsorrel, and the deserving poor are relieved at Christmas, Lady Day, Midsummer, and Michaelmas.

*Marked * are in North End, and the others in South End.*
